The one coat systems above, show the full beauty of the wood grain, through the coating. Often referred to as sacrificial coatings, these products tend to wear by erosion. When properly applied, peeling and flaking, will NOT occur as these products need to soak into the wood like a lotion, and have no film build to eventually peel. Being translucent requires that the wood be properly prepped to be able to absorb in, and they DO NOT hide surface staining. They generally DO NOT last as long as the solid stains, however they are far easier to maintain and recoat at a later date.

They all offer Excellent UV Protection and colour retention.
